Mountains to Sound Greenway Trust

The Mountains to Sound Greenway

The Mountains to Sound Greenway is the spectacular 1.5 million-acre landscape that connects Seattle and Central Washington, including the natural lands, rivers and communities.

The Greenway provides easy access to recreation and nature for millions of people in the Northwest, key to the quality of life in this region.

The Greenway Trust

The Mountains to Sound Greenway Trust leads and inspires action to conserve and enhance this landscape surrounding Interstate 90, ensuring a long-term balance between people and nature.

Founded in 1991, the Greenway Trust coalition works to promote public land acquisitions, connect a continuous regional trail system, teach people of all ages about the importance of conserving forests and wildlife, improve recreation access, create new parks and trails and mobilize thousands of volunteers.

The Mountains to Sound Greenway offers easy access to nature and outdoor recreation just minutes from metropolitan areas.

Lands Added to Public Ownership

The Greenway Trust coalition advocates for public land acquisitions by working with private landowners who are willing to sell, finding funding for purchase and securing public land ownership and management by the appropriate agency.

- Irreplaceable fish and wildlife habitat, along with opportunities for hiking, birdwatching and taking in close-up views of the Snoqualmie River and Mount Si, have all been preserved by King County with the purchase of 21 acres of land adjacent the County's Three Forks Natural Area.

Volunteers at Bothell's North Creek Forest help restore and improve the ecological health of this important watershed.

- Bothell's "Last Great Forest"- 41 acres in the North Creek Watershed- was saved from development thanks to the efforts of citizens groups and the City of Bothell.
- King County acquired 38 acres at Sunset Quarry for a future Squak Mountain trailhead.
- King County acquired approximately 70 acres in the Canyon Creek Headwaters Natural Area on the eastern edge of Grand Ridge Park above Lake Sammamish.
- 480 acres of Kittitas County forestland at Amabilis Mountain were conserved with help from Forterra.
- King County acquired 40.5 acres on Taylor Mountain.
- A 3.7 acre parcel south of the South Cle Elum Depot was acquired by Washington State Parks providing an ideal location for a trailhead in the future.

History and Recreation

The Greenway Trust plans for and helps communities link a world-class regional trail system, builds and maintains trails and recreation areas, promotes tourism and historic preservation and helps cities retain their cultural identities and urban vibrancy.

In 2011- 2012, the Greenway Trust supported the following highlighted projects across the Greenway:

- The Mountains-to-Sound Trail at José Rizal Park in South Seattle was completed through efforts from the Seattle Mayor's Office, Seattle Department of Transportation, Washington State Department of Transportation, and Seattle Parks and Recreation.

The new Mountains-to-Sound Trail provides stellar views of the Seattle skyline and Puget Sound.

- The City of Kirkland purchased 5.75 miles of the East Side Rail Corridor to build a section of regional trail.

In the future, Kirkland will enjoy a section of regional trail allowing for recreational access to bicycles and pedestrians.

- The City of Bellevue installed interpretive signage about the Mountains to Sound Greenway along the new Factoria trail.

Selected Highlights

20TH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATIONS:

In 2011, the Greenway Trust celebrated its 20th anniversary with a variety of events, activities and educational opportunities for all ages including a 130-mile trek from Ellensburg to Seattle and a 20th Anniversary Photo Contest and Traveling Exhibition.

20th Anniversary Trekkers go the distance over 9 days of biking and hiking in the Greenway.

MOUNTAINS TO SOUND GREENWAY 365:

The Greenway Trust introduced a program that highlights all of the events and activities happening year-round in the Greenway: Mountains to Sound Greenway 365. Supporting the year-round concept is the Greenway Trust's new online events calendar that allows visitors to tailor their event search based on interest, date or location.

INTERPRETIVE KIOSKS:

Eight kiosks were completed in Fall 2011 giving visitors to some of the Greenway's major recreation and visitor sites on public lands the chance to learn more about the surrounding area including trails, safety, conservation efforts, and the natural history of the Greenway landscape.

Seeking National Heritage Area Designation

In 2011, the Greenway Trust launched an official campaign to have the U.S. Congress designate the Mountains to Sound Greenway as a National Heritage Area.

The Greenway is a special place. It's time to make it official.

This designation is a key strategy in preserving this iconic landscape. Official recognition of the Greenway will strengthen a sense of place, enhance funding opportunities, empower partners to work together more efficiently, and formalize the Greenway coalition's cooperative management style across this broad landscape.

The Greenway Trust conducted an extensive study on the future of the Greenway that included active community participation of over 1,000 stakeholders over three years. Government agencies, local businesses and conservation organizations support the designation of the Greenway as a National Heritage Area.

Partners working together to bring a project to success is a key philosophy of the Greenway Trust.

- The Greenway Trust and WA State Department of Natural Resources began construction on a new 5-mile trail and trailhead at Mailbox Peak in the Middle Fork Snoqualmie River Valley. With additional support from federal and state partners and the Spring Trust for Trails, crews and volunteers will continue to work on this exciting trail project into 2013.

National Trails Day at Mailbox Peak brought more than 60 REI volunteers to help break ground on the new trail project.

- King County completed a major renovation of the Burke-Gilman Trail through Lake Forest Park and Kenmore. The new trail segment is 12 feet wide and provides glimpses of Lake Washington.

The new Boalch Trail at Meadowbrook Farm provides critical recreation access for local area residents and visitors.

- The City of North Bend finished the paving of the Boalch Trail with the help of volunteers, King County Open Space and Trail Bond funding sources.

- The US Forest Service, the Greenway Trust and the Evergreen Mountain Bike Alliance converted 3 miles of old logging roads into mountain bike trails in the South Fork Snoqualmie

Basin as part of the development of a 40-mile network of trails that will provide bikers with incredible sweeping views as they ride.

- Over 60 miles of some of the most popular and heavily-used wildland trails in the Greenway, such as Rattlesnake Mountain, Tiger Mountain and Mt. Si, were improved and maintained by Greenway crews and volunteers.

Volunteers and Education

The Mountains to Sound Greenway serves as a magnificent outdoor classroom, engaging people of all ages in outdoor education and stewardship.

- The Mountains to Sound Greenway Education Program taught 2,692 students in classrooms and 1,928 students on field study trips this year about the importance of salmon and wildlife, soils, forests and recycling biosolids. Volunteers from 19 classes participated in additional ecological restoration events after their education activities.

Learning in the outdoor classroom

- Greenway Summer Camps brought youth out into the Greenway to do trail maintenance and ecological restoration at Tiger Mountain, the Twin Falls Trail and Luther Burbank Park on Mercer Island. Campers learned new skills, explored local creeks and trails, all while having fun outside.

- Greenway volunteers donated 50,772 hours to outdoor trail and restoration projects and planted 41,794 native trees and shrubs. Over 50% of volunteers were youth.

Greenway Summer Campers work together to make trails safe and accessible for public use.

Volunteers and Education cont'd

- Increased restoration activities in Redmond, Seattle, Bellevue, Shoreline, Kirkland, Cle Elum, and Ellensburg, raised awareness and brought more volunteers to maintain the Greenway landscape in both King and Kittitas Counties.
- Corporate commitment to the landscape increased through the participation of the following groups in stewardship activities:

Thank you to our donors.

The Greenway Trust gratefully acknowledges the individuals, businesses, and foundations that generously support our work across the Mountains to Sound Greenway.

With the support of this broad and diverse group of donors, the Greenway Trust will continue to conserve and enhance the landscape from Seattle across the Cascade Mountains to Central Washington, ensuring a long-term balance between people and nature.
